SOJOURNERS, NOT CITIZENS.

At the various school towns in this state it has been a common practice for students to vote in local elections, notwithstanding the fact that they are mere sojourners and not citizens. An attempt to break up this practice at Salem was made early this week but failed through the fault of a deputy prosecuting officer who moved that the court, on the ground that the offending student had no right to be admitted to vote and that he (the prosecutor) having been advised by his "associate Mr. Knight" had come to the same opinion. By what authority and through what processes of reasoning the officer and his "associate Mr. Knight" reached this extraordinary judgment we are not able to understand, since the voting of a person not a resident of the city in which his vote is cast, is a clear and positive violation of both law and common sense. One does not need to be a lawyer to know that a man leaving his established home for any purpose with the intent to return to it does not lose his residence, whatever may be the reason for his absence, or that his home does not become residence, no matter how long he stays. These are principles of law common and familiar and it is strange that anybody old enough to vote should be ignorant of them. A student at Salem or at any other place not his established home has no right to vote of course, and any one who does vote is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable under the laws to punishment.

Two or three years ago one of the professors of the state university at Oregon, with the lack of judgment common to young professors, marched all the students of legal age that he could muster to the polling booth in a local election and "voted" them. The master came before the board of regents, where it was condemned as an unwarranted interference in the affairs of the town and an act directly in violation of law. Out of this incident grew a permanent rule of the university that an attempt of the part of any student not a citizen of Eugene to vote in any local election should be considered sufficient cause for his dismissal. This rule was adopted upon the motion of Judge Matthew P. Deady, president of the regents, who, let us add, probably knows as much of the law it applies in this case as Deputy State Attorney Courtney, of Salem, or his "associate," Mr. Knight."

A NEAT SUBSTITUTION.

Justice sometimes has a way of turning upon the weak and defrauding the strong in the case of men who do this sort of thing with administrative effect. Kelly and Moran were equally guilty of the murder of Kalsasha, the Greek sailor, and the trial of Moran has shown why Kelly alone was indicted for the crime and Moran held merely as a witness. Moran testified before the grand jury that the poison which caused Kalsasha's death was administered by Kelly, and that he saw Kelly administer it; and he delivered this testimony under promise from the foreman that no indictment would be returned against him (Moran). If his testimony in court should be the same as that delivered before the grand jury, But Moran didn't keep this promise. He did witness, but he refused to testify in the trial, and Kelly was acquitted because the direct evidence upon which the state's attorney relied, and which was to have been obtained through Moran, was wanting. Moran himself, upon his escape, was then indicted for the murder, and upon being recognized was put open trial, and now has justly been found guilty of murder in the first degree. His "smart" work has kept Kelly's neck out of the noose and paid his own fine.

It's a pity that Kelly couldn't hang too, but the hanging of Moran was good enough as far as it goes. Had Moran remained and testified as he agreed to do, Kelly unquestionably would have been found guilty, and Moran probably would have obtained immunity. Hence, therefore, as they were equally guilty, and as only one, probably, would have had to hang, it doesn't matter much which one, and justice will be about equally satisfied, either way.

Moran may now take what comfort he can out of the fact that he has succeeded in saving his accomplice's neck at the expense of his own. This verdict was much needed. It will put a check upon the practice long prevalent here of "hopping sailors," so as to stimulate the industry of ship chandlers, or persons engaged in buying or conveying them on ship board, so as to get their advance wages. More men than Kelly and Moran have been in this nefarious business at our Northwestern ports for years, and it is high time that some one or more of the scoundrels hanged for it.

We must remark again that from the present point of view it is worthy of all admiration how neatly and deftly Mr. Moran has put himself in Mr. Kelly's place. The processsion may now move on.

SECRETARY MANNING'S REPORT.

According to Secretary Manning's report of the last of the public debt, subject to call until 1868, will be called for payment by Oct. 1, 1867, and therefore until then the surplus revenue can only be applied to the purchase of bonds at their market price to the amount necessary to meet the requisite wants of the existing fund. The bulk of the public debt is represented by $250,000,000 of 1 per cent. of 1861, and $150,000,000 of 1 per cent. of 1867. This living fund, according to Treasurer Clark, will effect the payment of the whole public debt, greenbacks, as far as it goes, within a year after the last named date.

It is clear that, unless in the event of the government's default, we shall have a call on a call paper in the month of October for the sum of bonds for the sum of $150,000,000. The total increase of the indebtedness of the country is still in doubt, and the new call paper will be issued in the month of November, and the new call paper will be issued in the month of December, getting as they do, the per cent. of the outstanding notes on the part of the banks. Banks cannot afford to leave these notes unpaid in each bank, and the result is that the time is fast approaching when the opening of additional bank accounts will be required to support the silver certificates, or greenbacks, to save a bank issue. Shrewd financial observers are disposed to believe that the West will not be the occasion for lessening more greenbacks.

Mr. Manning, on the subject of silver, is anxious to the core, when he says we ought to stop the continued coinedage. He says that to manufacture, store and distribute coin of a depreciated metal does not stop its depreciation, it does not relieve the depression of trade, but it stimulates owners, borrowers and employers of capital, who continue to work regardless of the value of the coin. It is a remarkable fact, which every man who has earned and saved 100 dollars that he would like to employ or lend out capital as well as those who have earned and saved 1000 dollars, and whose earnings every year, however great, as well as they the silver inflation has not stopped and does not stimulate industry or trade."

The silver dollar, when first issued in 1857, was worth about 90 cents. It has been as low as 72 cents this year and is now worth about 78 cents. Mr. Manning sees clearly that under the present situation, when England and Germany both discard silver as full legal tender, the United States ought to do as France does—hold to the gold standard and only issue silver for the purpose of making good debts indicated that may exist in the form of subsidiary coin. We have seen a subsidiary currency to-day than we need, and even with the withdrawal of the government, small greenbacks and their replacement by silver certificates, the people hold to-day silver and silver certificates the nominal sum of $100,000,000, and we still have $75,000,000 in the hands of the people and $75,000,000 remaining in the treasury one year ago.

That is, we have nearly $90,000,000 of silver that the people don't want. If we would do as the secretary urges and stop the coinage now and stop increasing the treasury load, we would do just right, but if we persist in our present course of keeping up silver in the vaults in the treasury, when in a given nominal sum of coin silver is worth less than gold, silver will ultimately drive out gold, and we shall become a monetary country, using only silver, as India and other oriental countries do. John Sherman and others contend to the contrary.

This has not been able to maintain the silver coin at par with gold by receiving it and returning it to the treasury at the mint ratio, and we also receive and treat certificates based upon it as equivalent to gold; but it is certain that the silver coin is not equivalent to gold, and that the government should arise to the willingness or ability of the government to receive the silver certificates as the equivalent of gold, all the business of our great country will be greatly simplified to the silver standard, and we will be rid of the standards that prevail among the great commercial nations. If you should be compelled to adopt silver as the only standard of value, adoption would demand all our foreign commerce, and we would be compelled to pay a premium for silver, and if any sound should arise to the willingness or ability of the government to receive the silver certificates as the equivalent of gold, all the business of our great country will be greatly simplified to the silver standard, and we will be rid of the standards that prevail among the great commercial nations.

At the various school towns in this state it has been a common practice for students to vote in local elections, notwithstanding the fact that they are mere sojourners and not citizens. An attempt to break up this practice at Salem was made early this week but failed through the fault of a deputy prosecuting officer who moved that the court, on the ground that the offending student had no right to be admitted to vote and that he (the prosecutor) having been advised by his "associate Mr. Knight" had come to the same opinion. By what authority and through what processes of reasoning the officer and his "associate Mr. Knight" reached this extraordinary judgment we are not able to understand, since the voting of a person not a resident of the city in which his vote is cast, is a clear and positive violation of both law and common sense. A student at Salem or at any other place not his established home has no right to vote of course, and any one who does vote is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable under the laws to punishment.

On the contrary, to labor, Democratic House Superintendent Paine, of New York, thus wrote in the North American: "There are 1,200,000 depositors in the savings banks of this state whose deposits aggregate $30,000,000, or double the amount of the national bank deposits in the state." Indeed, 16 under the continued reign of the other dollar, that coin should become the commonly accepted standard of value, every depositor would suffer a loss of 2 per cent. on his deposits at the present rate of interest, and the present market value of silver, the sound sterling, now quoted in your market at $1.06-17, would go up to $1.08, and the franc, now quoted at 20 cents, would go up to 25 cents. The effect would be extremely serious and would affect the business of the country, and especially upon its labor.

On the contrary, to labor, Democratic

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

HOLSTEIN BEAR.—On Monday last J. E. Knapp brought to this market some Holstein steers which were weighed in at 1,200 pounds. On examination of the scales the weigher expressed his surprise at their weight; said there must have been some mistake, as they were carefully weighed in pairs and single. A pair of three-year-olds, half-grade year-olds, three-somer, weighed 2,700 pounds, and a little one, thirty months old, turned the scale at 1,200. When calves were raised by hand on skinned-out skins, the animals never have been fed a particle except hay, in fact, Knapp says that owing to the severe drought they have been on very short feed the past three months and have made no growth since September. To twelve or fourteen months of age a heifer in thirty months, without extra feed, is proof that the Holsteins have merit for the production of beef economically as well as superior quality.

OPPIUM PLANTS.—Any one who thinks that all the opium-fields are like the miserable specimens seen lurking around the streets, is very much mistaken. Some people appear to use the plants in Portland, while others grow them to a layout worth $175. Opium, not counting those in East Portland, Albina and Oregon City, which enter this office, are put on the market, and are sold by the pound in thirty months, without extra feed, is proof that the Holsteins have merit for the production of beef economically as well as superior quality.
